

David Marshall first began singing as a 15 year old school boy in his local town of Southport. Fronting several bands throughout the eighties he achieved considerable success winning over audiences and several 'battle of the bands' competitions.

The new millennium found David Marshall turning his attention on his own solo career. By now his voice was mature enough to handle the big ballads and his repertoire was extended to include such genres as Classical and Opera. From mellow romantic background music to rousing parting atmosphere David can provide the perfect music for any occasion.